

Shinano Kenshi Corporation (SKC), one of the world's leading motor manufacturing companies, introduces a giant step forward in manufacturing. It goes way beyond contract manufacturing. Give us a product footprint, an interface and the electrical parameters. We'll design and assemble the entire product, test it, package it and ship it to your door.

SKC Systems Solutions.

SKC supports its customers through the entire product life cycle – concept, design, value engineering, production, test and logistics. SKC has created a remarkable infrastructure, fine-tuned to coordinate the various resources globally and cross-divisionally to help bring our expertise and capability full force to our customers.

A natural evolution.

Historically, SKC has been the leader and out front of our competitors on value content. That is why moving up the content value to include collaborative engineering design support, tooling design, process assembly flows and even testing equipment is a natural evolution. We have routinely provided component integration including gears, pulleys, brackets, worm gears, custom wire harnesses, custom integrated connectors, special brackets, injection molded parts, blowers, lead screws, surface mount and gear boxes. We've also provided technology integration including motors, driver and control technologies, printing technology and high-tech PC drives.

Master the motor, master the product.

You see, we design and manufacture motors. It is our core technology. Most contract manufactures are an outside source capable only of assembly. A catch and assemble company just cannot provide a total package because they lack the technical expertise and resources. We, on the other hand, provide all the knowledge, coordination and skills necessary to create a complete systems solution.

SKC provides relationship continuity with a high service level. The same design and development resources are there for you solving problems during launch and mass production. We coordinate the resources and information that the project requires, at every level, every step of the way.

We have the vertical integration for both machining and assembly. We are a partner who listens and works for our customers. We offer a consistent and comfortable front-end and back-end relationship.

We are one unified company with accountable, available, reliable professionals working for you.

Managing the Asian arm.

One major advantage of Shinano's System Solution approach is that a customer maintains all the same points-of-contact, relying on the same people and organizations they have been using successfully for years while doing business with Shinano Kenshi. There are no new parties to introduce, no new facilities to visit, factories to source audit or relationships to build. And for new customers as well, SKC becomes their connection to Asia...and it remains our responsibility to manage that arm of the business so our customers don't have to.

And SKC offers project and partner transparency... we are a very open and flexible company.

It works.

Shinano Kenshi Corporation is ready to take our customers to this higher, more efficient and powerful level of design and manufacturing. We are currently doing that for major corporations.

Call us today toll free at 800.755.0752 and find out how we can make the SKC Systems Solutions work for you.

